BURGLARS MAKE LARGEST HAUL AT BOOK STORE

Dewine Milling Company Suffers; Robbers Escape In Auto

GETTING NEARLY $500

Sayre & Hemphill Drug Store is Also Broken Into.

While W. E. Boring carried on a conversation with a cool-headed burglar who stood guard at the rear door of the Boring book store, on South Detroit street, a pal of the burglar escaped from the store with $39 in cash and about $300 in merchandise at 1:30 o'clock Saturday morning.

The same burglars are believed to have entered the elevator of the Dewine Milling Company, on Bellbrook avenue, knocked the combination from a safe in the office, and escaped with $101.85 in cash. Before police had frightened away the intruders at the Boring store, they had forced an entrance to the Sayre & Hemphill drug store, next door, but left without entering. There are no clues.

Police arrived in time to see the burglars' automobile, a high-powered touring car, fleeing without lights north on King street.

The burglars effected entrance to the book store and drug store by cutting the mortise locks out by use of a brace and bit, boring a succession of holes around the lock. At the book store, the mortise lock was not locked, two bolts, at the top and bottom of the door, being used in place of the lock and key. The burglars unfastened the lower bolt through the hole made where the mortise lock came out, but had to bore another hole at the top of the door, to unfasten the top bolt. At the drug store, the cutting out of the mortise lock in the heavy rear door, left free access to that store.

Mr. and Mrs. Boring, who occupy an apartment directly over the store, were aroused first by sounds in the store, which they believed to be rats. They listened to the suspicious noises sometime before Mr. Boring opened a rear window, and accosted a man standing near the rear door with a revolver in his hand. "What are you doing," said Mr. Boring. "None of your business," replied the guard cheerfully. "I'll make it my business," said Boring. "I'll call Phillips," referring to Merchant Police-man Charles Phillips. "Go ahead and call Phillips," replied the burglar calmly.

In the meantime, Mrs. Boring, at a front window of the apartment, facing on Detroit street, shouted for help, attracting the attention

U. S. SENTIMENT AGAINST GENOA ECONOMIC MEET

Administration Seeking Way to "Get From Under" Conference

EXPLAINS DELAY

Arms Parley May Come To End By Last of Next Week.

Washington, Jan. 28.—President Harding and his advisers are seeking a way to "get from under" the proposed Genoa economic conference without offending either the Italian government, which issued the invitations, for the British government, the parley's principal sponsor.

This was the explanation put forward, today, in semi-official quarters for the administration's unusual delay in answering the invitation to the Genoa meeting.

Pressure both for and against the U. S. taking part in the Genoa meeting is being exerted at the White House daily. Dozens of letters are being received, advocating acceptance and rejection of the invitation.

Administration spokesmen, who have sounded out congressional sentiment declared today, that opinion was unfavorable to American participation. It is known also that a majority of the cabinet shares this view.

The White House statement that the "United States bears a relation to the Genoa conference that is totally different from that of any other nation" was taken, today, as fairly reflecting the administration's determination to examine carefully every aspect of the meeting before finally committing the U. S. to any policy.

Extraordinary importance is attached in diplomatic circles here to the mission of Col. Harvey in Paris. French circles in Washington are hostile to the Genoa meeting. They regard it with speculation as a British-Italian move to rehabilitate Germany and pave the way for eventual economic exploitation of Russia, in which France would not be a major participant.

Meanwhile events shaped steadily today toward the end of the Washington conference. In some quarters the belief was expressed that the conference might be able to wind up its work by the last of next week, but in others it was stated that it probably would take longer than a week to conclude.

Europe Must Organize Productive Forces--Fess

Yellow Springs Congressman Declares Only Way to Rehabilitate Europe is To Organize and Capitalize Productive Forces.

Akron, Jan. 28.—"I know of no way for Europe to rehabilitate, save the one and only way—organize and capitalize the productive forces of the country," said Congressman Simeon D. Fess, of Yellow Springs, Ohio, today in addressing members of the state bar association assembled in the annual convention here.

"Any other suggestion in the Genoa conference would be futile," asserted the Ohio representative.

In presenting his plan Fess said: "First Europe should stimulate production, then cut or waste in useless standing armies. We should make that clear in case we accept the invitation to send a delegate to the Genoa meeting. We have the gold and the credits; Europe has the depreciated paper money and the debt. She wishes to sit with us in council. It may be very fine for Mary Anne but awfully tough on Uncle Sam."

Referring to long and continued sessions of the law-making body, Fess said, "I am convinced that it should be possible for us to outline a program of legislation put it on its passage and then adjourn. We could do this in the house because we have rules in that body. Not so with the other body since they operate by unanimous agreement, most difficult to secure in a body of 95 members of many minds. Their legislation is accomplished by exhaustion. So long as any one wishes to speak, a vote will be deferred. Of course, that means indefinite session. It may not be proper to say this, but I am convinced some changes should be written in the rules. It is inadequate for a member of either house to find fault but the time has come when the interests of the country would dictate the possibility of outlining a program and complete it within a reasonable time."

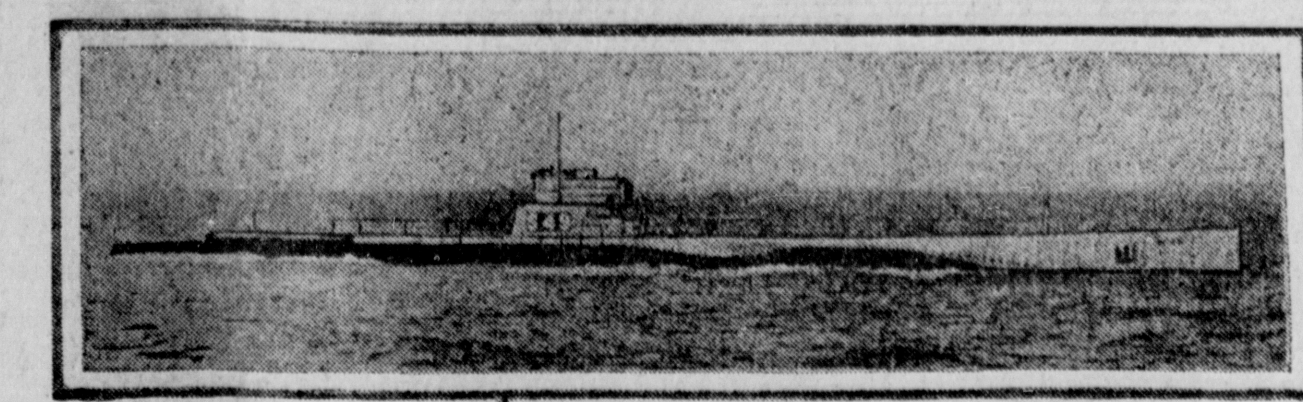

The banquet in the armory building, last evening was attended by more than 500 attorneys from all parts of the state with their wives.

CARDINALS MAY BE DEADLOCKED OVER NEW POPE

Archbishop of Palermo Mentioned as Possible Selection.

Rome, Jan. 28.—Cardinal Alessandro Luadi, archbishop of Palermo, may be selected as a compromise candidate in the papal election at the Vatican next month, in the event of an unbreakable deadlock, it was learned today, from an eminent prelate of the Roman Catholic Church.

It is reported that negotiations have been conducted between the factions headed by Cardinal Merry Del Val and Cardinal Gasparri, but without any results. The adherents of Cardinal Merry Del Val are known as the "irreconcilables" and are opposed to reconciliation between the factions and the quinquennial. The followers of Cardinal Gasparri, the secretary of state wish to continue the policy of the late Pope Benedict XV.

The names most prominently mentioned, aside from the possibility of a "dark horse," follow in the order named: Cardinal Ruffini, archbishop of Pisa. Cardinal Ruffini. Cardinal Laurenti.

BANK OFFICIALS RECOVER STOLEN LOOT; SEEK MEN

Perpetrators of Daring Holdup Near Pittsburgh Still Free

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 28.—Walter Joyce, 27 of Pittsburgh and Oren Graeme, 25, an actor of Marietta, O., were identified today of the five robbers who held up the First National bank of Crafton Friday. Ten suspects were among a large number of prisoners at the morning "stand up" at Central police station. Joyce was identified positively by two employees and the president of the bank.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Jan. 28.—Orders were out today at every police station to "clean up" the town as a result of the robbery yesterday of the First National Bank of Crafton. The police were paying particular attention to the former disreputable district of old Allegheny, more familiarly known as "Little Canada," which for years has been the hangout of all sorts of crooks.

Bank employees said today that the actual amount taken by the robbers was approximately $23,000. It was explained that after the statement that $95,000 had been taken had been given out, a considerable amount of securities believed stolen, had been found in the bank.

The First National Bank of Crafton officially announces that every cent of the loot taken by the five bandits has been recovered. It had been previously announced that the loot amounted to $95,000.

CONFERENCE OF DIRT FARMERS FOLLOWS MEET

Group of Men Who Are Not Satisfied With Session Meet.

OFFER PROGRAM

Federal Conference Adopts Number of Resolutions Friday Night.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Organized labor throughout the United States was asked today to back up efforts of farmers to get congress to pass immediately, pending measures designed to relieve the depressed agricultural situation.

Action to align the labor forces with the dirt farmer was taken at the concluding meeting of the "rump" conference held by admittedly disgruntled farmers who called parley of their own when they became dissatisfied with the working of alleged "hand picked" conference called by President Harding.

Washington, Jan. 28.—With the work of the national agricultural conference completed after five busy days in which farmer delegates and representatives of allied industries adopted a widely diversified program for the rehabilitation of agriculture, interest centered upon a "dirt farmer" conference to be held here, today, by a group of men who declare they are not satisfied with the results of the administration's farm parley.

Today's conference was expected to be attended by a number of men who were delegates to the national meeting called by President Harding, and it was announced that a comprehensive program setting forth the legislative needs of the farming industry would be drawn up and approved for presentation to congress.

Among recommendations which will probably be included in their legislative program, were government operation of railroads, stabilization of grain prices through government action and the establishment of a federal agency to finance the exportation of farm products to foreign countries.

The national agricultural conference before it finally adjourned last night, adopted a number of resolutions to round out its program of suggestions to affect improvement in the agricultural situation. Among these were: Legislation to meet the need for short term credits; re-enactment of the excess profits tax on corporations if additional federal revenue is needed; a federal investigation with a view to the establishment of crop insurance; additional efforts for the sale of farm loan bonds.

TEMPTATION

Once I lived with a woman who said she was going to reduce. She was a very interesting study. She tried to deceive me about what she was eating because she had said she was going to reduce and didn't like me to know that she was eating all sorts of little delicacies on the sly. She even deceived herself, because she had told herself that she was going to reduce and she hated to admit she wasn't doing it. It's something like cheating oneself at solitaire.

She started out bravely by refusing sugar and cream in her tea. She kept this up for a little while, but she always looked resentful when all her friends said that of course lemon tasted much better in tea than milk and that if we did the proper thing, we would all drink tea as the Chinese do and taste its delicate flavor instead of mixing tannin with milk and sugar. She was allowed lemon in her tea, but after a week or so, she began saying that, after all, half a teaspoonful of sugar was not very fattening and she would make it up by not having a second buttered muffin. Only somehow or other she always took the second buttered muffin anyway!

And that is the reason why fat women gain weight when they go on a reduction diet. They go without all sorts of things in their minds. They think about refusing food so much that I am sure most of them believe they have actually refused it.

This special friend of mine began reducing very strenuously. She ate almost nothing for one meal—with the result that by the time the second meal came along she was so ravenous she ate everything in sight, and probably "ate on" many more ounces than she could have reduced by her brief fast.

C. S. S.—Olive oil will cleanse and nourish the skin to a certain extent, but it is not as good as a fine cream. The latter has other things in it which are a benefit to the skin, while the former is limited. If you prefer to use olive oil, you must use it in such a way that it will not cause a growth of hair.

Grandma—Grey hair should always be shampooed with a fine white soap. If there was a way of keeping the hair clean without any soap, it would be better still. However, to offset this, blueing is used in the last rinse, as soap has a tendency to make grey hair yellow instead of the blue-white which is so much desirable.

Interested Reader.—A band of black ribbon velvet is often worn around the throat because it is very becoming to certain types and does help to hold up and hide a sagging neck. If you use an astringent several times each week it will help to keep all the muscles of face and throat from sagging. You can preserve any lotion by adding a very small quantity of salicylic acid to it. Your chemist will know how much you should use according to the lotion that you have.

COUNTRY FIDDLERS ARE TUNING THEM UP FOR CONTEST

Inquiries received at the Extension Office of the Ohio State University indicate that there will be at least a dozen entries in the contest for the champion country fiddler of all Ohio, to be held at 4 o'clock on Feb. 2 as part of the University's Farmers' Week program. One such fiddler, who proposes to come all the way from Holmes County, is 89 years old.

His name is Thomas Allison, his address R. F. D. No. 6, Millersburg. A resident of the Holmes County who called the Extension Department attention to Mr. Miller, and who backs the old gentleman to win the State championship, says:

"He is a bona-fide, dyed-in-the-wool country fiddler, 89 years old, and well known in this county. He has played all of the old-time country pieces all of his life, and is the youngest old man you ever saw. Last year, he sheared about 2,000 sheep."

Noble County's entry is Josiah Carpenter of Whigville. Mr. Carpenter says he will come to Columbus provided that some of his neighbors also make the trip. It is thought that this will be the case.

George Crane, extension secretary of the College of Agriculture, has received six applications to enter from the members of a Franklin County "Old Fiddlers' Orchestra." He says that such of this orchestra as are real countrymen will be entered, as individuals.

"Greene County has a chance of being well represented at the contest," said County Agent Ford S. Prince. "Since there is quite a bit of talent in the county, several community fiddler's contests have been held from time to time, and Greene County could rank with the best."

SPORTSMEN WILL MEET ON TUESDAY

Members of the Greene County Fish and Game Protective Association will hold their February meeting, Tuesday, February 7, at Clevelers, on Green street.

The organization's officers are now stressing the payment of dues for the year 1922. Since the annual banquet in December, few members have paid up, and there are still many delinquents, whose dues will be collected any time by R. H. Kingsbury, secretary, at the Criterion clothing store. The dues for a year are $1, which includes a banquet given in the year in which the dues are paid.

SAYS DESTINY IS FIXED BY SELF

The closing service of the second week of the group evangelistic meetings, Friday evening, was largely attended and interesting. The audiences have grown with the passing nights and next week is looked forward to as the crowning week.

A male quartette rendered a special number, and at the close of the sermon, Mrs. Mary Watkins sang an invitation hymn, Rev. E. M. Middleton chose for his text Matt. 27:22. "What Shall I Do Then With Jesus?" and in part, said, "One's attitude toward this question determines one's destiny. At the time of the crucifixion there were three put to death. One died in sin, one died for, and one died without sin. Every one must do something with Jesus, and but one of two things can be done, either accept or reject him."

"Not what we think of Jesus, but what we do with him fixes destiny. Christ is the only source of pardon, and peace and salvation and eternal life. Money cannot buy, pleasure cannot secure or position procure these things, they are all conditioned upon our acceptance of Jesus. It's an individual matter, and each determines for himself."

Let all plan for the closing week, which will be at Trinity next week, beginning at 7 o'clock, Sunday evening.

INDIAN CHILDREN TRAMP 14 DAYS AFTER PARENTS DIE

Fort William, Ont., Jan. 28.—Six little Indian children, who left the frozen bodies of their father and mother in the Northern trapping wilderness, reached Wacombo, on the Canadian government railway, after a fortnight of tramping over snow covered ground. The five younger children, ranging upward from a baby of a few months, were brought back by their 14 year old brother and a neighbor.

Their father, Atchimo Nan Tucheese, died of influenza in the family's woodland hut, Jan. 13. That day the father called Atchimo, the oldest boy to his bedside, told him the end was near and gave him $1.200 the fruits of his trapping, and bade him care for his brothers and sisters. There was little food in the home.

Unable to bury the bodies, Atchimo left them in the shack with the five other children, while he set out on snow shoes to fetch the nearest neighbor, 30 miles away. Two days later Atchimo came back with John Hingooosh, the neighbor. The five hungry tots were chewing raw moose flesh for nourishment. They had burned most of the furniture to keep from freezing.

The bodies of their parents were frozen stiff.

The younger children were packed on the dog sled by Hingooosh and Atchimo, who then began the long march to Wacombo, where they were fed and given medical aid.

It is feared the little baby will die.

SELFISH INTERESTS ARE RESPONSIBLE DECLARES PARKER

Columbus, Jan. 28.—That selfish interests are responsible for efforts being made to have Gov. Davis remove him from office is the claim made here today by Judge Don V. Parker, state prohibition enforcement commissioner.

On behalf of a number of Hamilton county residents, Attorney G. S. Hawk Cincinnati, recently filed charges with the governor accusing Parker of being lax because hundreds of owners of property where illegal liquor traffic is being conducted have not been made to pay the Dow-Aiken liquor tax.

Although admitting the correctness of this charge, Parker said he interpreted the law as holding county authorities equally as responsible in matters of this kind as the state dry enforcement machinery.

"We run down every possible case of this sort," said Commissioner Parker, "but we can spare only two men out of the 20 allowed us for the work. The other 18 are kept busy seeing that the law is enforced. With only two men available, we are, naturally, handicapped in covering the hundreds of cases alleged by Hawk."

OVER 4 THOUSAND DOLLARS RAISED IN CHEST DRIVE

With twenty-four more hours left in which to acquire the total of $10,000 set as a goal for the Community Chest campaign, the fund had reached a total of $4,025.80 at noon, Saturday.

Noon reports of committees from different sources showed that the funds from each classification solicited has continued steadily growing each day.

Saturday was "button day" in the drive, and high school girls, volunteers to the cause, were on every street corner, soliciting funds for the drive from pedestrians. Each person contributing is given one of the "welfare" buttons, and those who contributed more than $1 were given a membership card.

Funds from other sources reported Saturday included $50 pledged by the Eagles Lodge; $26.41 received through morning of "button day" and $27 from the "everybody's fox drive" held, Thursday, this fund being left over after the boxes were sold. The totals in the different funds up to Saturday afternoon were as follows: Church fund, $982.80; business and professional men, $1,083.50; men's clubs, $496; women's organizations, exclusive of churches and lodges, $1,230.55 and lodges $180.

People who have pledge cards given out at the churches are demitted also that they are expected to make a return of those cards Sunday morning. The campaign itself will close Sunday evening at eight o'clock.

SURE SIGN OF EARLY SPRING

Will there be an early spring? People who believe in signs say that the spring lamb will soon be gambling with the weather man by gamboling on the lawn.

They are justifying their prophecy by the fact that a car-load of "hoboes," eastern bound, passed through this city, Friday night. According to tradition, the return of the "hoboes" to the east at this time of year is a sign of an early spring.

The travelers were in an empty coal car, in which they had built a fire and they were dancing and singing around the blaze, as the train passed through this city.

MAN WITHDRAWS OPPOSITION TO NEW INCREASES

Columbus, Jan. 28.—Declaring that he had found upon investigation that the increased charges which the new Ohio Bell Telephone Company proposes to charge for service connections "works to the advantage of a regular subscriber for two years, or more, Harry E. Townsend, Zanesville druggist informed the state utilities commission that he withdraws his opposition to the company's application for permission to increase these charges.

Townsend said he believes the new rates will discourage "the few months subscribers from making change and causing additional expense to the company," which expense, he stated, falls upon the long term, regular subscribers in the form of increased rentals or lack of opportunity to the company to reduce rentals.

COOLIDGE DECLARES TEARS OF WORLD ARE BEING WIPED AWAY

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—Accomplishments of the present administration are wiping away the tears of the world and are healing the wounds of the nations, Vice President Coolidge asserted last night in an address before the Indiana Republican Editorial Association.

Mr. Coolidge said the Republican party assumed control at a time "when the nation had been without responsible leadership for a year and a half," and that the party had, "through the inspiration of a great president made an honorable record of achievements which no sophistry could misinterpret, no misrepresentation could obscure and which was bringing peace and tranquility to the nation."

Declaring that the first great act of the administration was the selection of cabinet officers, "sound and seasoned in public service," Mr. Coolidge reviewed the activities of the president and the Congress since last March.

"Congress, convening in April, directed its first steps to ending the state of war," said Mr. Coolidge. "It did this by forming a treaty of peace with Germany which was an American treaty, abandoning no one but made to protect American interests."

"The long-pending treaty with Colombia, was ratified, an example of justice running into generosity, which, no doubt, will be for our financial advantage."

"The present administration offered Mexico a treaty which recognized that government and at the same time protected our interests. This treaty has not been accepted. As a result of our dealings with foreign countries, even those which we have not recognized, every nation in the world knows where our government stands and we are re-established in the respect of the world."

"From the work of Budget Commissioner, Dawes, the nations' expenses were reduced from $5,500,000,000 last year to about $4,000,000,000 this year and an estimated $3,500,000,000 next year."

"Taxes have been reduced so that the door of opportunity has been reopened. The temporary law restricting immigration has relieved pressure from without when there was already fear of unemployment within and thus has protected the workman."

Mr. Coolidge cited the good roads appropriations, the maternity bill and other bills passed by Congress.

Referring to the farmers, he said that Congress and the president both sought with great diligence for their relief.

"It is the policy of the party in power to preserve the American market for American agriculture and to assist the farmer by increasing the prosperity of his customers," he added.

Mr. Coolidge referred to the unemployment and farm conferences, the relief given the railroads through loans and lower wages, and reorganization of shipping as other accomplishments.

He declared that the administration above everything else, was working for the relief of war veterans and their dependent relatives. He concluded by saying that the arms conference had resulted in outlawing of the newly-created barbarities of war, banished armament from the sea and substituted law for might and conference for coercion.

FOUND DEAD EARLY SATURDAY MORNING

Edward Berryhill, 63, of Belbrook, who had made his home for the past several months, at the John Turner, Jr. home, west of Belbrook, was found dead in bed, Saturday morning, by Mr. Turner, who went to his room to arouse him. Mr. Berryhill had been in poor health for the past several months, suffering from heart trouble, which caused his death. Dr. D. D. Slagie, of Centerville, who had attended the man, stated that death had resulted from heart failure.

Mr. Berryhill was an employee for several years of the O. S. and S. O. Home, in this city, assisting in the farming department. He resigned last March, and went to Belbrook. He has no immediate relatives.

Funeral services will be conducted from the Turner home, Monday afternoon at one thirty o'clock, with interment at the Belbrook Cemetery.

AWARDED CONTRACT FOR ROAD WORK

N. B. Putnam, Van Wert contractor, low bidder on the construction of the Cedarville-Jamestown pike, 6.9 miles, has been awarded the contract by the state highway department.

Putnam's bid for bituminous macadam, was $125,523, almost $50,000 less than the estimate of $172,691 made some time ago, and was considerable less than the low bid received by the state highway department last August when all bids were rejected.

The low bid is said to be indicative of the general trend among contractors, to cut considerably under their prices of a year ago, in order to get work. Bids 25 per cent below estimated cost, being common.

HENRY CLEWS

Weekly Financial Review

New York, January 21, 1922.

Passage of the bill changing the composition of the Federal Reserve Board preparation for early action on the soldiers' bonus and the Foreign Debt Funding bill in substantially its present form as well as the apparent favor in Congress for other measures which will hardly help the financial situation and may seriously impair it, have naturally been significant factors during the past week. The French political situation has if anything, however, improved, and a definite invitation to attend the Genoa conference has been sent to the United States. Our action on the invitation is not yet determined.

Improvement of Railroad Prospects.

Domestically the gradual improvement of railroad prospects has been an outstanding feature in the week's developments as reflected in share quotations. An agreement between the railroad executives and the representatives of employees whereby pending differences of opinion will be locally taken up for consideration at an official conference is hopeful as far as it goes. Further information regarding conditions on the roads themselves shows an improvement in the movement of freights corresponding to the growing volume of business. An increase in car loadings from a month ago to the present time is an important element in the situation.

The earnings showing continues to be inadequate, especially on those roads which have always found it difficult to pay dividends even in times of general railroad prosperity, but the more capably managed lines are now making some very encouraging reports representing the business of the latter part of 1922.

Automobile Situation

More and more, of recent years, there has been a tendency to regard the condition of the automobile trade as symptomatic of the general state of business. During the past few months automobile stocks have suffered seriously from the continuous and general cuts in price of cars which were necessitated on the part of various manufacturers by the competitive policy of others. A week or so ago the announcement that the Ford Motor Company was to make another reduction was received with dismay but the announcement that this cut would amount only to a few dollars per car made during the past week, is now accepted as indicating that relative stability has about been reached. In spite of the fears of manufacturers concerning what is called "saturation" of demand the prospect for 1922 now appears reasonably good. Makers of some of the more popular cars have mapped out extensive production programs, and several others have led to distinct advances in the price of stocks.

Steel and Business

While there has been but little advance as yet in the activity of the steel plant, industrial reports show that the shortage and for this reason a growth of demand in the near future is reasonably expected. The placing of orders for railroad steel has also begun in large volume. A good prospect for automobile construction

How New Pope Is Selected By College of Cardinals Which Will Soon Convene

Unless a postponement is announced, the College of Cardinals of the Catholic Church will soon sit to elect a successor to Pope Benedict XV.

Interesting rules govern the election of a Pope. Strictly speaking, however, any male Christian, who has reached the age of reason, and is not a heretic, a schismatic or a notorious Simoniist, can be chosen.

Though since Urban VI, 1387 to 1389, none but a Cardinal has been elected Pope, no law reserves to the Cardinals alone that right. At the close of the ceremony following the Pope's death, the College of Cardinals meets in solemn conclave and ballots in secret upon the papal successor. All Cardinals, and they alone, have the right to vote. They must, however, be appointed legitimately, have the use of reason and be present in person, not through a procurator or by letter.

The Cardinal Dean, always the bishop of Ostia, presides over the congregations of the Cardinals, during the first of which the various constitutions which govern the conclave are read and the Cardinals take an oath to preserve them, in the following days, the conclavists, the confessors and physicians and servants of various kinds are examined or appointed by a special commission.

Each Cardinal has a right to take into the conclave a secretary and a servant, the secretary usually being an ecclesiastic. In case of illness a third conclavist may be allowed with agreement of the Genoa congregation. All are sworn equally to secrecy and also not to hinder the election.

In the meantime a part of the Vatican Palace is walled off, including two or three floors, and the space divided into apartments, each with three or four small rooms or cells, in each of which a crucifix, a bed and a table and a few chairs. Access to the conclave is free through one door only, locked from without by the marshal of the conclave and from within by the Cardinal Camerlengo. Four openings are provided for the passage of food and other necessities, guarded from within and without. All communication with the outside is forbidden under pain of loss of office and ipso facto excommunication. A Cardinal may leave because of sickness, with a physician's certificate, and return, but this is not so in case of a conclavist.

Within the Cardinals live with their conclavists in the cells, where they must shut themselves in if they do not wish to be disturbed. The conclave opens officially on the evening of the tenth day after the Pope's death unless another day has been assigned. Including the Cardinals, prelates and conclavists, there are perhaps 250 persons in the enclosure. The government of the conclave is in the hands of the Cardinal Camerlengo and the three representative Cardinals who succeed one another in order of seniority every three days.

About seven or eight o'clock on the morning of the eleventh day, the Cardinals assemble in the Pauline Chapel and assist at the mass of the Cardinal Dean. After mass they assemble in the Sistine Chapel where the actual voting takes place. There, six candles are lighted on the altar, on which rest the pates and chalice to be used in the voting. The papal throne is removed. Before each chair is a small writing desk. When ready to vote they enter the Sistine Chapel, accompanied by their conclavists bearing their portfolios and writing materials. Prayers are said by the Bishop Sacristan, the ballots are distributed and then all are excluded except the Cardinals, one of whom bolts the door.

There are four possible forms of election: scrutinium, compromissum, accessus, quasi-inspiratio. The usual form is that of scrutinium or secret ballot, in which the successful candidate requires a two-thirds vote exclusive of his own. When there is a close vote, and only then, the ballot of the Pope-elect, is opened to make sure he did not vote for himself. Each Cardinal deposits his vote in the chalice on the altar and at the same time takes the prescribed oath in Latin, which translated means "I call to witness the Lord Christ, who will be my judge, that I am electing the one, whom, according to God, I think ought to be selected."

For this election three Cardinals are chosen by lot each time to preside over the operation of voting, three others to control the count of their colleagues and still, three others to collect the ballots of the sick and absent Cardinals.

Then if the number of ballots agrees with the number of electors the chalice is brought to the table and the ballots on the outside of which appear the names of the candidates, are passed from hand to hand to the third Cardinal who reads the names aloud. Then the three Cardinal revisors verify the result, which is proclaimed as definite.

If no candidates received the necessary two-thirds vote on the first ballot, recourse is often had to the accessus form of voting, which is said to speed up the election. The electors use the same blanks, and if he wishes to vote for his first choice he writes "Accedo Nemini," and if he changes his vote he introduces the name of his new choice. The old ballots are burned, mixed with straw so that no smoke passing through a chimney in the window of the chapel, shows those on the outside that a choice has not yet been made. There are always two votes taken every day, in the morning and evening, occupying two or three hours each.

When a candidate is elected, the Cardinal Dean asks him if he will accept the election and by what name he wishes to be known. Each Pope takes a new name in imitation of St. Peter's change of name. The doors have been opened and official cognizance taken of the new Pope's awakens.

The Masters of Ceremonies then lower the canopies of all the Cardinals' chairs save the Pope-elect, and he is conducted to a neighboring room and clothed in Papal garments. The Cardinals then advance and pay him the first obedience.

The proclamation to the populace follows. The Pope then either confirms or appoints the Cardinal Camerlengo, who puts upon his finger the Fisherman's ring. Then follows the proclamation to the public made by the Senior-Cardinal-Deacon in St. Peter's and the conclave usually terminates.

If the Pope should happen not to be a bishop, he must be consecrated immediately by the Cardinal Bishop of Ostia. If already a bishop, there takes place only the solemn blessing. However, he enjoys full jurisdiction from the moment of election. On the following Sunday or Holy Day, takes place at the hands of the Senior Cardinal Deacon, the Papal "coronation," from which date the new Pope dates the year of his pontificate.

of two employees of the New Manhattan restaurant, who were standing out in front of the restaurant. They at first thought someone was fooling them, and delayed before sending in a call to police headquarters. Patrolman Charles Simms who was just preparing to leave the station after his lunch hour, responded at once, and a red light call brought Patrolman Fred Jones from his rounds on East Second Street. Delay in reaching the police, providing time in which the burglars made their escape. When Patrolman Simms reached the front door of the Boring store, the burglars automobile was still standing in the alley in the rear of the Allen building. Patrolman Jones went down Second Street to reach the Alley opening on that street, while Patrolman Simms started down Main Street toward King. Before either could reach the street, speeding north on King and being driven without lights.

Loot at the Boring book store included a new Remington typewriter delivered Tuesday, and valued at $102.50, a dozen gold pencils, a number of pens, flashlights, and other small, but valuable merchandise, amounting to $300. The $89 in cash was in a drawer in the safe which was not locked. At the DeWine Milling Company, the burglars forced a rear door on the elevator building and made their way into the office through an unlocked connecting door. The safe was locked, but the yeggs knocked the combination off, opening the safe, and escaping with $101.85. Nothing else in the office was touched, it is believed. At the drug store an inventory showed that nothing had been taken, although the rear door was swinging open, and it is believed the arrival of the police frightened the burglars away before they could loot that store.

Chief of Police M. E. Graham said, Saturday, that he was convinced that the job was committed by burglars from out of this city. The Chief connects the local burglaries with several recent burglaries at Jamestown, when office supplies were taken, and a number of similar burglaries which have been worrying Springfield police. The police have a number of burp sacks, which the burglars evidently intended to use to carry off their loot but which they left in their flight.

Another theory advanced Saturday morning was that the burglars first saw the typewriter in the window of the Boring book store, and when they gained entrance to the Sayre & Hemphill drug store, thought they were making their way into the book store. It is advanced that the burglars on discovering their mistake, then left the drug store undisturbed and effected an entrance to the book store. This theory is supported because of the fact that the burglars were in the book store when frightened away, not having completed their depredations there, and that they would not have had time to break into the drug store after being discovered.

The single shot fired by the burglars when escaping, is thought by a number of people, to have been a signal, possibly to guards stationed at the alley entrances. The single shot passed through the glass of the transom over the rear door of the D. E. Anderson Insurance office and Whitt jewelry store but no trace of it within the room has been found.

FARM RESIDENCE BURNS TO GROUND FRIDAY MORNING

Sparks from a defective flue are thought to have started the fire which resulted in the total loss of the home of Henry Fudge, one and one half miles out of Xenia on the Union road, Friday morning. The loss is estimated at $4,000.

The fire, when discovered had made rapid headway, the entire second floor and stairway being ablaze. Mrs. Florence Erwin, of West Virginia, who with her two children, were visiting at the home of Mrs. Erwin's grandfather, Mr. Fudge, had smelled smoke and discovered the fire on the second floor which was spreading to the stairway. At the same time a passerby noticed the burning roof, and aroused the family.

When discovered the blaze was so far advanced that neighbors who fought the flames, by forming a bucket brigade, made little headway and confined their efforts to saving the outbuildings.

All of the contents on the second floor of the dwelling were destroyed, including the bedding, the family's clothing and furniture.

The Fudge home, a large two-story frame dwelling, was only partially covered by insurance, $1400 being placed upon the house and $325 on the contents. The valuation and loss is placed in the neighborhood of $4,000.

Mr. Fudge, one of the well-known, retired farmers of the county resided on the farm with his daughter, Mrs. Alice Thompson. Following the fire, the family came to this city, to the home of Mrs. M. E. Fudge on North Galloway Street, where they will live temporarily.

Lester Lane, Xenia City parcel post carrier, in his customary way went to the show for an evening's pastime last Wednesday evening with his wife and mother in law, Mrs. D. F. While absent about twenty-five of his relatives and friends entered their home and packed in a dark rear room impatiently awaited their return. A two course luncheon was served. He received many beautiful and useful presents. His mother, Mrs. Mattie F. Lane and sister Janice assisted his wife and mother-in-law in carrying out the details of the well-planned party.

CONTRIBUTED RECIPES

"From a Reader": "Eggless Cocoa Cake": 1 cup granulated sugar, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1 cup sour milk or butter-milk, 1 teaspoon of soda, 1-2 cup of cocoa sifted with about 1-4 cups of flour, 1 teaspoon of vanilla extract. Dissolve the soda in the sour milk; cream the sugar and butter together and add the sour milk and the flour-and-cocoa mixture. Last add the vanilla. If I make a boiled icing, which needs the white of an egg, I add the yolk of the egg to the cake, but it is very good without this egg-yolk. I thought some of the readers would like to try it while eggs are so high."

Unsigned Reader: "Molasses Cookies" 1 egg or 2, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 scant cup shortening, 1 cup of molasses, 1-4 teaspoon each of ground cinnamon, ginger and cloves, and 4 large cups of flour. Stir these ingredients together and add 2 level teaspoons of soda which have been dissolved in 1-2 cup of hot water; once more stir well, then let stand over night to grow light. In the morning shape into cookies and bake.

Suet Pudding: 1 cup chopped suet mixed with 1 cup each of raisins and currants and 1 cup of maple or corn syrup. Stir this mixture well, then add to it 1 cup of sour milk and 2 level teaspoons of soda sifted with a very little flour. Stir until it foams, then add enough extra flour to form a stiff batter. Steam one and one-half hours."

E. D. "Sweet Potato Biscuits": Bake three medium-sized sweet potatoes, scoop out the pulp and mash, seasoning with paprika, melted butter and a very little milk. Beat with a fork until light. Sift into a bowl 1 large cup each of white and whole-wheat flour; add 1-2 teaspoon of salt and 2 heaping teaspoons of baking powder. Rub the cold potatoes into the dry ingredients with the finger tips, adding 1-2 tablespoon of additional shortening, and then moisten to a dough that can be handled, with cold sweet milk. Roll out on your bread board, using a little flour as possible, and cut into biscuits. Brush over with a little milk and bake in a quick oven for 20 minutes."

Old Reader: "Hominy Waffles": To one cup of cooked hominy add 1 pint of sweet milk which has been scalded and cooled, 1 tablespoon of melted butter, 1 tablespoon of either maple or brown sugar, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1 pint of bread flour, and 1-3 of a yeast cake which has been dissolved in a few teaspoonfuls of warm water. Beat well, then cover to rise over night in a warm place. In the morning add 1 egg (beat white and yolk separately) and bake in hot, well-greased waffle irons. Serve with ground cinnamon and sugar mixed, or with honey or maple syrup. My sons like these better than the ordinary waffles."

Charles H. Wieand.

Charles H. Wieand will arrive in Xenia, Saturday, Mr. Wieand will have charge of the singing in the evangelistic campaign at the First Methodist Church which will start on Sunday. Mr. Wieand is an experienced and successful chorus leader, having spent several years with large tabernacle choruses. Here's the Truth About Battery Dope

There are a lot of places offering to give your battery a fresh start in life by putting "dope" in it.

As a matter of fact there isn't any kind of dope made that will take the place of recharging and proper care.

If your battery does really need acid it is far cheaper and safer to come to Battery Headquarters to have it put in. Whether your battery is a Willard or not, bring it to us—if it can be done at a saving to you, we'll set it on its feet in the quickest possible time.

HELEN HUNTER'S HUSBAND

BY JANE PHELPS

Helen Has a Very Gay Evening. Chapter 25

Jack found his mind disinclined to stay fixed on his work, so necessary if he were to keep his bills paid. His thoughts constantly strayed to Helen. He rather hated the idea of her going without him. She had said her friends thought him selfish because he did not take her out more. He was sorry she discussed him, her husband, with the people she knew. There was something in him that resented it—that would not have allowed him to discuss her or anyone near to him with strangers.

"I guess it is the different bringing up," he muttered, comparing the two mothers, Helen's and his own. "I wish she were more domestic," he went on after a time. "I am afraid she will have to commence to look after things better and give me my time if I am to succeed in making money enough to satisfy her." He nibbled his pencil, his brows drawn together. Helen was, in a way, proving a problem. And not yet did even he realize how puzzling a one.

Finally he gave a determined shrug and resumed his work, this time holding his thoughts fast upon it until it was quite finished. Then he gave a start as his eyes rested upon the clock. It was nearly one. Surely Helen had not intended to stay so late.

Feeling hungry he went into the kitchen, but remembered before he opened the ice box that there was nothing in the house to eat. He had finished the rolls for his dinner. He lighted his pipe, smiling grimly. That would have to do, he'd go hungry to bed.

The clock struck one, then two. Still Jack smoked, and waited for Helen. At half past two she came in, her cheeks flushed, her eyes bright.

"You stayed awfully late, Helen," Jack said reproachfully. "No use asking if you had a good time, you show very plainly that you did."

"I couldn't come until the others did, could I? I did have a good time, and a lovely supper."

"Where did you go?"

"After the picture—it was lovely! You must see it—we went to that new place on One Hundredth Street to dance. We danced until about 12, then Mr. Barnes ordered supper, everything I liked, and then we danced again. He dances as well as you do, Jack, and that's saying a lot. Oh, I hope they will ask me again!" with a happy sigh.

"I don't! Not that I do not want you to have a good time, dear, but I can't afford to return such rackets, and so long as I can't I don't like the idea of being under obligations to anyone. Come, it's late and I have to get away early so that I can return this work."

"I consider people I am with are under obligations to me because of my company, instead of my being under obligations to them. I never saw such queer pride as you seem to have. You let people know you neglect me,—I mean by never taking me out—then talk about being under obligations to someone who does. Mr. Barnes said he hadn't enjoyed himself so much in a long time, and thanked me enthusiastically for being so good as to go with him."

"The usual stuff."

"Now don't spoil my evening by talking like that! I never saw such a man, begrudge me the slightest good time."

"And—"

"Helen," Jack interrupted, "I want you to get something in this house to eat. I haven't time to earn the money and run the house too. I was hungry when I finished my extra work, and there wasn't a bite in the house. You didn't care, of course, because you weren't hungry—you were having, as you said, a delicious supper. But I cannot work on an empty stomach; neither will I go out to my meals. I will go for rolls in the morning, but after this I shall expect you to see that I have good nourishing food."

"That's right, spoil everything by scolding me! told you I hated housework! If you want to keep house you must earn enough to pay a maid. Nell Layton never goes near her kitchen."

"It's nothing to me what Mrs. Layton or anyone else does. If I am to earn the money, you must make it possible for me to do it. No man can do good work and live as I have been living the last two days. Come! Talking won't help things. It is 3 o'clock. We must have breakfast by 7. You can make the coffee while I go for the rolls."

Helen opened her mouth to speak, but after a quick glance at Jack's determined face she closed it, and quietly hurried to bed.

Tomorrow—Helen Dubs Jack an "Old Fogey."
